

NAZIS PRESSED IN NORTH AND SOUTH

REDS CHOP UP
AXIS LINES AT
CZECH BORDERDRIVE ON TO KNOCK
HUNGARY OUT OF WAR

BY W. W. HERCHER
London, Saturday, Sept. 30 (AP)—Russian and Romanian armies chopped holes in Axis lines along the Czech-Polish border and in northern Transylvania yesterday, and also penetrated into the strategic rail city of Oradea in their massive three-way drive aimed at knocking Hungary out of the war.

Bucharest and German announcements told of the fight which has spilled onto Hungarian soil at points along a 100-mile front, while a special Moscow announcement said that Marshal Leonid A. Govorov's Leningrad army—which has freed all the Estonian mainland and now is pressing heavily on Riga, Latvian capital—had killed 30,000 Germans and captured 15,745 between Sept. 17 and 28.

Berlin Admits Retreat
Radio France at Algiers said that new demonstrations had broken out in Budapest, Hungarian capital, after it became known that the Russians had reached pre-war Hungary.

Berlin implied that the Red army temporarily had smashed into Szeged, Hungary's second city, as well as other key towns, when it reported that Szeged, Gyula and Oradea were "again in Hungarian hands."

The Germans acknowledged retreats in Transylvania, far to the east, and said a general Nazi army regrouping was going on throughout the Balkans, presumably with the idea of diverting more troops to Hungary in an effort to keep that weakening satellite in the war on the Axis side.

Escape Route Menaced
Targu-Mures, important Transylvanian city 48 miles southeast of Cluj, Hungarian-annexed capital, fell to the Russians who surged across the Mures river, Moscow's broadcast communique said. Fifty other localities were seized in the pursuit of the Germans who said they were leaving Hungarian rear-guards behind them.

The withdrawing Nazi legions were in danger of being cut off at Oradea, 130 miles northwest of fallen Targu-Mures. A Bucharest bulletin said the Russians and Romanians had broken into Oradea, which controls one of the main Nazi escape routes out of Transylvania, after breaking Axis opposition in the Crisul Negru valley to the south.

Oradea is only six miles from the pre-war Hungarian frontier and 130 miles southeast of Budapest. This is the top of a 100-mile Russian attack line which both Bucharest and Berlin say has flowed over into Hungary and at one point reached a zone only 102 miles from Budapest.

The Russians and attached Romanian units under Marshal Rodion Y. Malinovsky also were spreading out through the Banat district of western Romania and Berlin said they had twice crossed the Danube river into Yugoslavia in their effort to get at the southern border of Hungary.

Tokyo Ships
Are Blasted
In Hideouts

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Sept. 29 (AP)—Japanese shipping seeking refuge in hideouts on the China Sea side of the Philippines has been smashed badly in the latest of U. S. seaborne aerial sweeps over the Archipelago.

Yank airmen from Adm. William F. Halsey's Third fleet flat-tops spotted the concentrations last Saturday. They went to work on them against negligible air opposition and sank or damaged 85 or more vessels, ranging from fleet tankers to small craft.

A belated report of the raid, made late Friday by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, said 29 Japanese aircraft had been destroyed. That raised enemy plane losses in the Philippines in these carrier attacks to 1,014.

Illustrating the recent statement by Nimitz that Japanese shipping had been forced to seek new anchorages in the Philippines, the Yank fliers made a "particularly heavy strike" at Coron bay, about 150 miles southwest of Manila bay.

The new kills raised to at least 160 the number of enemy ships sunk in seven days of carrier-borne attacks this month over the islands. In addition, more than 200 small craft were probably sunk or damaged.

Last Saturday's sweep also took in the Visayan Islands—Negros, Cebu, Leyte, Panay and Mactan in the central Philippines—as well as southern Luzon, on which Manila is situated.

American losses in the widespread attack were 10 planes, five pilots and three crewmen. United States warships were scathed, as in the previous attacks.

GENERAL WAGE
RAISE DELAYEDTouchy Question Will Be Held Up Until After Election Day

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

President Roosevelt conferred yesterday (Friday) on the politically explosive issue of a general wage raise, but some of his labor advisory committee conferees came away with the belief that nothing will be done about present pay ceilings before election day.

The question was given a shove toward the White House recently by two war labor board panels which legally disturb the wage-limiting Little Steel formula but that the president had the power to do it.

Some of the committee of CIO and AFL leaders indicated they believed the president agreed with them yesterday that wage rates will have to be revised upward. But there were suggestions of delay until the victory-in-Europe war production cut-backs force a return to a short work week and less take-home pay.

While Governor Thomas E. Dewey rested in Albany from his cross-country campaign, the president told a news conference that he had no definite dates for speeches beyond that of October 5, a broadcast to party workers from Washington. Dewey speaks the next night in Charleston, W. Va.

Rouge Plant Strike
Leaves 2,800 Idle,
Halts Steel Output

Detroit, Sept. 29 (AP)—Some 2,800 workers of the Ford Rouge plant rolling mill left their jobs today in protest against suspension of 32 men in the cold strip department, a company spokesman stated.

The spokesman, who said that 2,600 tons of steel production would be lost by midnight tonight, since furnaces can not be recharged until Saturday, stated that the trouble started when five men walked out of the department before quitting time Tuesday. When they were docked, 27 others left the plant in protest, he said.

The labor relations department suspended all 32 until Monday morning, and then the mass walk-out took place.

This dispute follows a strike involving 2,500 workers in the new pressed steel building, which was ended today.

Famed Fishers Plan
To Make Cars Again

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 29 (AP)—The famed Fisher brothers plan a return to the automotive industry.

This was disclosed today with the filing at the office of the state corporation and securities commission here of articles of incorporation for two new firms to bear the name of Fisher Brothers to design, manufacture, sell, repair and deal in airplanes, automobiles "and any and all automotive products."

Lawrence, William, Edward and Alfred Fisher set automobile industry circles buzzing with speculation two months ago when they suddenly announced the termination of their active connection with General Motors corporation.

Noted as pioneers in the automobile body business they had been associated with General Motors for approximately a quarter century. Lawrence, William and Edward had been vice-presidents of the corporation and Edward also had been general manager of the corporation's Fisher Body division. Alfred was director of aircraft activities of the division.

Joining with the four brothers in incorporating the two new companies today was Charles T. Fisher, another brother, who is president of Fisher & Co., organized to handle the family interests outside General Motors.

The brothers are understood to be the largest holders of General Motors stock next to the DuPont family.

The two new firms incorporated today are the Fisher Brothers, Inc., Delaware and Detroit, and Fisher Motor Car company, Delaware and Detroit, each with 1,000 shares each of no par common stock.

Beyond disclosure of the filing of articles of incorporation today no details have been given of the specific plans of the famed brothers. There have been many rumors in automobile industry circles that they might figure in a merger of a number of smaller automobile concerns to convert the "big three" of General Motors, Chrysler and Ford into a "big four."

CHILDREN DEAD
IN LANSING FIREBaby Boarding House Is Swept By Flames;
Parents At Work

Lansing, Sept. 29 (AP)—Four children were dead today as a result of a fire which swept through a frame garage converted into dwelling quarters.

The victims are Wayne Warren, 20-month-old son of Mrs. Frances Warren, who lived in the house; Frederick Sutton, 20 months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Rex Sutton; Claire Michael Thornton, 3, and his brother, Patrick Hazen Thornton, 2, sons of Pvt. and Mrs. Dexter Thornton.

A fifth child, Anna Marie Warren, 3, is in "fair" condition, the hospital said. The Warren and Sutton boys were trapped in the house, and firemen said both bodies were charred beyond recognition. Claire Michael Thornton died several hours later in the hospital.

Three of the children, the two Thornton boys and the Warren girl, were pulled from the building by Ernest Robinson, a salesman, who was driving past and noticed the fire. Robinson said he found two of the children lying unconscious in the smoke and flame-filled living room, and pulled them into the yard.

Neighbors said Mrs. Warren did washing and ironing for three families, and boarded children of war workers. She and her husband were separated last year, and

NINE ISLANDS
IN PHILIPPINES
AREA OCCUPIEDABOUT 10,000 JAPS
KILLED SINCE
SEPT. 15

BY VERN HAUGLAND

U. S. Pacific Fleet Headquarters, Pearl Harbor, Sept. 29 (AP)—Virtual conquest of three more islands in the Palau group by invading Americans who have killed close to 10,000 Japanese since they first landed Sept. 15 was announced by Adm. Chester W. Nimitz in two communiques today and tonight.

More than 150 of the enemy have been taken prisoner.

The new islands, or islets, were invaded Wednesday, in part to erase enemy artillery positions close to the air base island of Peleliu, where bitter Japanese resistance still persists from isolated pockets although most of the island is in Yank hands.

In the first communique today, Nimitz reported landings under warship and carrier plane cover on Ngesebus and Kongaur Islands, north of Peleliu and said Ngesebus was completely secured with dispatch, including a 4,800-foot fighter strip.

Tonight his communique said the Kongaur was secured Thursday as well as an unnamed island near it.

Peleliu Field In Use

Through Sept. 28, Japanese dead on conquered Angaur and nearly conquered Peleliu totaled 9,772, consisting of 8,717 on Peleliu and 1,055 on Angaur.

Tonight's communique told of a Sept. 28 raid by Marine Corsair planes on the enemy airfield at Babelthup, largest of the islands in the Palau group which form a stepping-stone toward the Philippines, 515 miles to the west.

American assault forces—Marines and the 81st Army division—now hold a cluster of nine islands at the south end of the strategic Palau, which flank the southeastern Philippines. The principal holding is Peleliu, invaded Sept. 14 (U. S. time), with its airfield, which already is in operation against the enemy.

Other islands are Angaur, six miles south of Peleliu, invaded Sept. 16 by the 51st; Noamoked, off the south tip of Peleliu, seized Sept. 16; Ngabed, at the northern tip of the eastern arm of Peleliu, captured Sept. 20; an unnamed islet below Ngabed, occupied Sept. 19, and another unnamed islet off the east coast of Peleliu, overrun Sept. 22.

Stolen Gas Stamps
Involve 2 Drivers

Detroit, Sept. 29 (AP)—Two men were arrested today on charges of having in their possession some of the 45,000 gas ration stamps stolen from ration board 40 a month ago.

Bardell P. Brunn, 44, charged with possession of 400 of the stamps, was released on $2,500 bond after he pleaded innocent before U. S. Commissioner J. Stanley Hurd. His examination was set for Oct. 20.

James Oliphant, 34, charged with possession of 46 of the stamps, was ordered held for trial.

Soldiers Lose Faith
In Hitler Promises
Of Secret Weapons

BY HAL BOYLE

American First Army Headquarters, Sept. 29 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's promises of mysterious "secret weapons" which will permit the battered German armies to snatch victory from defeat no longer are taken seriously by many of his own troops.

Nazi propagandists have held out this threadbare hope so long that it now is working against them in the minds of soldiers upon whom the last-ditch defense of the Reich rests.

Typical is the attitude of one German captive who was bitter over the failure of Heinrich Himmler to provide promised new weapons.

"I suppose," said one of the guards, "he was going to send you one of those new secret weapons like that one you drop into the sea and it sinks ships for 50 miles around."

"Of course not," the soldier replied angrily. "Don't kid us about those secret weapons. We know such talk is silly."

This critical view is in striking contrast to the pugnacious faith with which German prisoners in Normandy only three months ago defended the Nazi secret weapons they had heard much about but never seen.

Taking advantage of the lull while American forces are building up supplies, the Germans have been plugging Siegfried line gaps with miscellaneous outfits of low-grade, hodge-podge troops.

In the meantime, they are refitting better grade troops in the rear for the battle of the Rhine, which may decide the fate of Germany.

Besides his "cancer" brigade of soldiers suffering from stomach ulcers, Hitler has thrown into the Siegfried line defenses middle-aged or elderly home guard troops and soldiers recuperating from wounds still untreated. At least one battalion of men is suffering from ear ailments.

One German sergeant said it was a relief to him to be captured after serving with this group, most of whom were deaf or hard of hearing.

"You couldn't approach one of these men at night while they were on sentry duty," he said, "because they couldn't hear you to challenge you and if you came in front of them suddenly they fired at you without waiting to see who you were."

"We lost three sergeants that way. I am glad to be your prisoner."

Lyons said he would file a murder charge tomorrow against the father, 31-year-old Warren Patterson, and Common Pleas Judge J. C. Daugherty summoned a special grand jury to meet Monday.

The prosecutor traced the tragedy to a broken home. Patterson related, Lyons said, that he and his wife separated two months ago and he assumed custody of their sons three weeks later. Mrs. Patterson was arrested at Ashland, the couple's home, today on a formal charge of abandonment and placed in jail here.

Former head of the Office of Price Administration and one of the leaders in the fight for its enactment in Congress, Brown said "we're going to get along in the postwar period because the fundamental economics of the country are in far better shape than they were in 1918 after World War I."

ANGELA GUILTY DECLARES JURY

Only 45 Minutes Needed
To Settle Retrial
At Manistique

BULLETIN
Manistique, Saturday, Sept. 30.—“Guilty as charged” was the verdict returned by the jury in the embezzlement trial of Mrs. Angela Malmberg this morning after 45 minutes deliberation. The case was being retried for a second time.

Manistique.—Enlivened by suggestions from Prosecutor William J. Sheahan that moves might have been contemplated to “buy off” jurors, testimony in the embezzlement trial of Mrs. Angela Malmberg came to a close at a Friday night session of Schoolcraft county circuit court, and after final arguments by Sheahan and defense counsel R. W. Nebel the case was given to a jury at 11:25 p. m. by Judge H. W. Rannels.

Defense witnesses heard Friday in the trial, in which Mrs. Malmberg is accused of embezzling funds of the Manistique Light and Power Co., while employed as a cashier and clerk, included Josephine Busch, also a former employee of the company. Miss Busch stated that there had been laxity in bookkeeping methods at the light company office, and that safe combinations were defective.

Mauritz Carlson, cashier of the First National Bank, gave testimony regarding Mrs. Malmberg's financial status, telling of a small account which she carried at the bank. The husband of the defendant, Carl Malmberg, also told of his wife's monetary affairs, claiming that she owned no property or bonds, and had only a $1,000 life insurance policy.

Malmberg was questioned by Prosecutor Sheahan regarding a trip he was alleged to have made last week to the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. S. Headland in Hiawatha township, and was asked if an attempt was made to buy off jurors. This Malmberg denied.

Mrs. Malmberg, taking the stand in her own defense, denied taking any money from the light company, and said that she had made no confession.

“I never took a cent to my own use,” she declared.

The defendant repeated an accusation made at her previous trial that she was “covering” for R. G. Hentschel, an official of the light and power company, and that she had promised to “stick by him” in covering up some irregularities in electric range deals.

Brought in as rebuttal witnesses by the prosecutor, Mr. and Mrs. Headland testified that Mrs. Malmberg came to their home last Saturday with a list of the trial jurors, and asked if any of them could be bought.

Mr. Hentschel was recalled by Sheahan, and entered a denial of the allegations made regarding him by Mrs. Malmberg.

Character witnesses called by the defense included: J. C. Quick, druggist; Dr. A. R. Tucker, physician; and Martha Cool, grocer.

Two jurors of an original 14 in the panel were dismissed after a drawing by lot. They were: Victor J. Schuster and William Weinert.

Bird Hunting Spotty In Upper Peninsula

Lansing, Sept. 29 (AP)—The state conservation department said today that hunting prospects for the opening Sunday of the upland game season in the Upper Peninsula are not good.

Field officers have reported that ruffed grouse, sharp-shinned grouse and prairie chicken populations were spotty, with the bird flocks generally smaller this year. The reports said foliage still is heavy in the peninsula.

Although duck hunters generally have been disappointed because pot holes were dry and local ducks widely scattered, many came back excited about the number of pheasants waiting to be shot. The department said hunters and field officers noted an apparently plentiful supply of pheasants, with cocks seemingly outnumbering hens in eastern Michigan.

On the Carpathian mountain front along the Czech-Polish border, separated from northern Hungary only by the narrow Ruthenian territory, the Russians said their troops captured 100 localities as they steadily hurled the Axis enemy back into the passes leading into the Slovakian and Ruthenian districts of Czechoslovakia.

South and southeast of Turka in old Poland the Russians seized 60 localities, including Wysocko Wyzne, nine miles southeast of Uzk pass; Mochnotoe, five miles from the Czech frontier; Orawa, nine miles northeast of Klimiec pass; Slawska, eight miles from Beskid pass, and Ludwikowka, nine miles from Wyszokow pass.

In the Delatyna area near the eastern tip of Czechoslovakia other units overcame enemy strongpoints and minefields in the mountains, where it is already beginning to snow, and captured 40 places on both sides of Tatar pass, an ancient invasion route in that area. Among the localities was Woronienka, five miles southeast of Tatar pass.

German troops were putting up a terrific battle in the tight semi-circle enclosing Riga in Latvia in an effort to protect their withdrawal through a narrow corridor leading to western Latvia and German east Prussia. Rough And Tumble Fight Decision Is Awarded LaMotta

Detroit, Sept. 29 (AP)—Jake La Motta of the Bronx slugged it out with George Kochan of New York in a rough and tumble round battle tonight to gain a unanimous decision before 6,791 spectators who paid $15,940 to watch the opening of the indoor boxing season at Olympia.

La Motta, who weighed 162, gave his opponent a two-round advantage.

From the opening bell to the final gong the two fighters stood toe to toe and slugged it out in one of the most gruelling bouts ever fought in the Olympia ring, but La Motta had the most powerful weapons, left hooks to the body and right crosses to the head, with which he clubbed Kochan from the second round on.

Referee Sam Hennessey gave five rounds to La Motta and called two even. Judge Joe Lenahan gave the Bronx bomber four and called five even, and the other judge, Frank Fisher, gave La Motta seven and called one even.

There were no knockdowns, but Kochan suffered a severe cut over the left eye in the seventh round.

Results of preliminary bouts: Willis Watkins, 152, Detroit, decision Larry Ray, 148, Highland Park (4); Pat Brady, 126, Bronx, knocked out Johnny Upshaw, 123, Detroit in the opening minute of the first round (6); Johnny Eaton, 154, Detroit, outpointed Johnny Ryan, 150, Detroit (6); Le Roy Willis, 130, Detroit, kayoed Jimmy Fox, 128½, Indianapolis in the second round (8).

Osa Johnson Recalls Solomons; What Makes Radio Writers Tick

Osa Johnson's 20 years of rambling in Oceania, Australasia and Africa with her late explorer-husband, Martin Johnson, brought her the rightful and hard-earned title of “America's First Lady of Exploration.”

Rightful, because she has been places where no other woman has been, and few would want to be, hard-earned, because she had to keep pace with a rugged husband, over muddy, snake-and-insect-infested jungle trails, sharing the ever-present danger of being skewered by a native spear.

Her new book “Bride in the Solomons” (Houghton-Mifflin) will delight and at the same time soothe the frustrated armchair explorer. The Solomons, even in peace times, were hardly idyllic, and better to read about than be in, although Mrs. Johnson found much that was beautiful and passing it on in colorful and convincing prose. Scorpions, poisonous lizards, stinging ants, hornets, deadly centipedes and the malaria mosquito were as much a part of her life in the islands as were the lush orchids, gaudy parrots and tropical sunsets.

Quarry: Cannibals
Mrs. Johnson, a bride who had to learn her cooking in a part of the world where a gas-range was unknown and would have been useless, came up to the Solomons from Sydney with Martin to photograph head-hunters and cannibals. It had never been done, and island officials shook their heads at such Yankee brashness. But they got their pictures, which illustrate the book, and Mrs. Johnson, a good reporter, gathered a profusion of material for what turned out to be a fascinating monograph on the marriage, religious, and economic customs of a people still so savage that ten years after her visit, they murdered her host at Malaita, and his staff of 12 as well.

One final note: There's quite a bit of plain English employed in the dialogue, enough so that you may find yourself mumbling, “You no go along big house before Master.... me takum this one fellow canoe belong you.” But it's simple enough. Master the one key word, “belong,” and you're all set to go along with Mrs. Johnson.

A book for radio listeners as well as aspiring writers who think they can equal, if not improve on the drama and comedy they hear on the air is “Off Mike,” edited by Jerome Lawrence (Essential Books). Contributors are Sherwood Schwartz, writer for Bob Hope, who tells “How to Write a Joke”; Bill Morrow, who has tailored innumerable laughs for Jack Benny; Donn Quinn, author of Fibber McGee and Molly; and Abram S. Burrows, who puts malapropisms in the mouth of Archie of Duffy's Tavern fame. The script writers analyze their methods, and being comedy writers, have a hard time being serious, which turns out all for the good.

The serious side is handled by Norman Corwin, one of the most prolific and best-known of radio drama writers, and there are entertaining and informative chapters by True Boardman, of the Silver Theater, and Gertrude Berg who is so well known to her listeners as “Molly” of “The Goldberg's” that they forget she is the author of the long-lived and popular day time serial. Recommended to all steady dial-twisters.

Sum-Up
“Special Delivery,” by B. D. Rosenberg, M. D. (Ziff-Davis.) Childhood explained as a “mechanical process,” and as such is not to be feared by mothers-to-be. Drawings by Gladys McHugh and non-technical text are combined to allay apprehensions through anatomical education.

“Murder of a Stuffed Shirt,” by M. V. Heberden (Doubleday Doran, Desmond Shannon, of the red hair and herculean strength, tackles a problem which begins with the murder of a millionaire who “talked a good war” and winds up as a draft-dodging racket of national scope. Ranks well up in the hardboiled school.

Alan Kapelner's “Lonely Boy Blues” (Scrappers) is synopsized prose, a novel of almost brutal realism. Chesty Anderson's father once lifted a horse and he was mighty proud of it. He was the strongest man in East St. Louis in those days, now long since past, and when his son Chesty was born, he saw in him the reincarnation of his own Samson-like youth, and Chesty grew up to be a physical wonder. The only trouble was that he preferred to use his brains rather than his brawn, which hurt his father immeasurably. Then Chesty was drafted, and what ensues brings the book to a thunderous and tragic climax. In rough, bold strokes, Kapelner has produced characters and a situation memorable for their ugliness and pathos.

Reckless Driver Is Unhurt In Accident

Louis Coppac of Rapid River yesterday pleaded guilty in Justice Henry Ranguette's court to a reckless driving charge and was given until today noon to pay $33.50 fine and costs.

Coppac was arrested by officers of Sheriff William Miron's department following an accident in which Coppac's car was wrecked against the northwest abutment of the North Western railroad overpass on US-2-41 at the Escanaba end of the Escanaba river bridge. Coppac was driving toward Escanaba at the time of the accident, which occurred at 2 a. m. yesterday.

Although his car was practically demolished, Coppac suffered only a scratch between his eyes.

U. S. 7TH ARMY CLOSES IN ON BELFORT GAP

fore the final assault.

Twelve miles southwest, the Canadians seized all the cross-channel guns which had been shelling Dover from Cap Gris Nez. Other big guns may remain in coastal pockets, however.

In the battle for the historic southern gateway to Germany through the Belfort gap and the Vosges passes to the north, French and Americans of the Seventh army were pressing steadily up the slopes of the Vosges mountains and along the northwestern approaches to the Belfort gap.

Black Forest Ahead
A dozen miles northwest of Belfort, the last Germans were flushed from the forest of Mont De Vannes, but the heaviest slugging was east of Lure, which is 16 miles west of Belfort.

Here the Americans stood firm under an assault in strength. Then they beat forward five miles over a battlefield where many of the Germans lay who tried to stop them, and captured the fortified village of Clairegoutte, 11 miles west of Belfort.

They were reported within sight of the gap, which begins at Belfort and stretches for 15 miles eastward between the Vosges peaks on the north and the Alps on the south. The German border of the Rhine and the Black forest are 30 miles east of Belfort.

Fifteen miles north of Belfort lies the first of four key passes through the Vosges, that of Busang, and Seventh army units were no more than 10 miles southwest of it after capturing the town of Servance.

Northward are three other passes, Schlucht, Bonhomme and Salles, and it was on the approaches to Salles that some of the most intense fighting was raging.

Lt. John Butler Gets Shaken Up By Nazi Shells

With the United States Third Army Before Metz—There was a driving rain outside. The roads were a sea of seepy mud and there was a chill raw wind that put us in our captured Jerry sheepskins. We were sitting around a large pineapple tin converted into a miniature stove, waiting for Johnny Butler. His colonel said Johnny was "quite some soldier."

A jeep came plowing up the long hill of mud onto the field, where our tent was camouflaged by trees and a small hedgerow.

"There's Johnny now," an officer said. First Lt. John C. Butler of Escanaba, Mich., commander of a platoon of light tanks that had been in the front lines for days, came walking briskly in the rain.

The colonel asked Johnny "how things went last night."

"Okay, sir, okay; right on schedule," said Johnny.

"But I heard you had gotten shaken up."

"Yep," said Johnny, "and I guess my boys were a little worried about me, sir. My platoon just shanghaied me. They put me in a tank and drove me out of there after the job was done. I was a little dazed, I guess."

Heavy German Shelling

The Jerries had been shelling the daylight out of a little French town on the east bank of the Moselle. It had been raining hard and Johnny was ordered to pull a number of infantry vehicles out of the mud and get them back to a safe distance. He went right into the shelling area with his light tanks and started saving the other vehicles when some of his tanks got stuck. He went on foot some distance to get medium tanks and had them pull out the light tanks. The shells were falling thick and fast but he saved the infantry vehicles and his own light tanks.

As the platoon's tanks were pulling their last vehicles back, Johnny stayed to direct traffic, sending his own tank back. With the job done, he started down the road after his tank, a mile away, when he came upon one of our straggling vehicles. "Get to hell out of there!" yelled Johnny. Right then the Jerries let it have what the tank men call "one and over," a shell in front and one behind. The vehicle raced to safety but then the Jerry artillery dropped 15 shells where he had been a moment before.

Johnny Blown in Ditch

"Those shells blew me right off the road and into the ditch," Johnny said. "I got up and got knocked down again. I must have been groggy because I kept getting knocked down—four times. Finally, I felt myself all over. I was still in one piece. I walked down to where my tank was and there were some of my boys."

Johnny said he explained to the boys that he ought to go back and see if all the vehicles made it. But he never got a chance to go back again. Some boys from Texas and Indiana just picked him up and put him in his tank.

"My boys take good care of me," Johnny said. "We drove down the road, out of range, and somebody gave me two stiff drinks of cognac. I looked around and there was all our stuff safe and sound."

"Are you sure you're all right, Johnny?" the colonel asked.

"Yep," said Johnny. "Fit as a fiddle. You should have seen the breakfast I ate."

PILOT INTERNED IN SWITZERLAND

Wendell Scott Advises Parents He Is Safe

That Lt. Wendell O. Scott is safe and has been interned in Switzerland is now definitely ascertained by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Scott, 1315 North Eighteenth street.

Lt. Scott, pilot on a B-17 bomber, was knocked out of action in a mission over German defenses on July 12. Mr. and Mrs. Scott later received letters from Wendell's captain and chaplain explaining the circumstances of the raid.

The letters stated that one of the planes in their group, presumed to be Wendell's, was hit, and that members of the crew were seen to bail out.

The action took place near the Swiss border and an Associated Press story which appeared on July 13 is believed to refer to the group of planes in which Scott's ship was included.

"Swiss radio communique said that Swiss fighter squadrons had forced nine American bombers to land from a force of 15 to 20 which had penetrated over Swiss territory. Another plane was said to have crashed, with a crew of three bailing out."

Whether Scott's ship was hit or whether he was one of the nine bombers forced to land is a matter of little concern now to Mr. and Mrs. Scott. The important thing is that the Escanaba flier is safe and has made contact with his parents.

Wendell Scott, who is 22 years old, was graduated from Escanaba high school in 1941. He later went to Chicago to work and enlisted there in June 1943. He had been in active overseas duty only a month before his ship was put out of action.

Germans Fight Harder For Their Home Land

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

Washington—The rosy dream of an early collapse of Germany is rapidly fading away, and all the signs point to hard fighting still ahead.

Our military planners had pinned great hopes on the airborne operation in Holland, the greatest of its kind in military history. If it had worked perfectly, in accordance with the blueprint drawn up weeks in advance, then the end of the war in Europe would today be definitely in sight.

Top military men counted so much on that stroke that even they may have been swayed by an optimism which at this moment hardly seems justified. Of course, the Arnhem operation must not yet be discounted as a failure. But it's obvious that it hasn't achieved the immediate success which had been hoped for.

Predicts War Until 1945

German resistance has stiffened all along the Siegfried line. This is not France. Every inch of the way must be contested.

In the light of changed conditions, it may turn out that General DeGaulle was not far from wrong when he predicted the other day that the war would go into 1945. Our own General Eisenhower has said, and he repeated it recently, that the end in Europe will come this year, and "he" has a pretty good record as a prophet.

The truth is that the German troops are fighting on the soil of their homeland with desperate ferocity. And the tragedy is that stupidity here in America is helping to brace the Nazis for this last-ditch stand.

It is the climax of a long and painful story. From the very beginning, we have given little Dr. Goebbels one propaganda stick after another with which to drive on the faltering German people.

In part, this was unavoidable. We do have free speech here, and writers and speakers who want to express themselves on the necessity for carving Germany up into little bits can do so. No matter how irresponsible the source of the articles that took this line, twisted little Goebbels could make ba high school in 1941. He later went to Chicago to work and enlisted there in June 1943. He had been in active overseas duty only a month before his ship was put out of action.

It sound as though it had been officially inspired.

Information out of Germany indicates that for at least a year and a half, this has been the only propaganda line with any real weight inside the battered Reich.

Over and over and over again, the German people have been told in the Press and on the radio that defeat would mean their annihilation, and over and over and over again we have furnished the propagandists with some fair documentation.

Nazi Radio Busy

Now comes a cabinet committee appointed to discuss the future of Germany, and what do we get? We get "leaks" about a furious dispute between the members of this committee, with Secretaries Hull and Stimson on one side and Secretary Morgenthau on the other.

The Wall Street Journal has carried a detailed account of what purports to be a digest of the Morgenthau proposal, and no repudiation has come from the secretary of the treasury as I write. The Morgenthau plan calls for the removal of all industry from the Reich; for reducing the entire population to the status of small farmers.

While it might be desirable to do that, it is utterly impossible. It is fantastic that it should be allowed to circulate as coming from a responsible source. The Nazi radio is said to be devoted to this theme night and day.

You cannot take $6,000,000 people in the midst of Europe's complicated civilization and move the clock back two centuries. Such a sincere and honest liberal as N. N. Dralstoff, the English writer, is even doubtful whether it is possible to give East Prussia to Poland without sowing the

Potato Growers To Need Spud Pickers

Because the Escanaba schools are to be closed Wednesday, Thursday and Friday next week, potato growers who will need students to pick potatoes are asked to personally make arrangements with students for work on those days when the students are employed as pickers on Monday and Tuesday.

E. A. Wenner, county agricultural agent, said that because the schools will be closed it will be impossible to notify the youngsters through the school principals. Therefore the grower must arrange with the students he has working for him Monday and Tuesday to come back during the three-day period, if they are needed.

Few growers have started to dig spuds yet, the agent said. Most of those now digging are in the St. Nicholas area.

Stork Can't Wait, Baby Born In Car

The stork won out in another race to St. Francis hospital Friday morning, and Mr. and Mrs. Matt Malner of Ensign are the parents of a daughter, born in the family automobile in the hospital drive-way.

It happened this way. Mr. and Mrs. Malner started for the hospital in good time but upon reaching Escanaba became confused in directions. The excited father-to-be stopped the car and ran into the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Sjoedin, 613 South Twelfth street, to ask directions.

Mr. Sjoedin, aroused by his wife, dressed hurriedly and took over the duties of driving for the distracted husband.

He didn't quite make it. But the important thing is that Mrs. Malner and the baby are resting comfortably, and Mr. Malner is now feeling much better, too, thank you.

Credit the "Buck Law"

DISCOVERY of the first deer hunting license issued in Delta county in 1895, when deer hunters were licensed for the first time in the history of the state, has aroused discussion as to the relative number of deer in the woods of the peninsula today, as compared with the period of nearly 50 years ago. It is the contention of most now aging hunters, that more bucks are being killed in this north country, in recent open seasons, than the total kill of all sexes in the days when a license cost only 50 cents, and permitted each hunter to kill five deer of any sex.

In recent open seasons the annual kill has seldom fallen below 50,000 bucks in the state. The peninsula's contribution to that total has been heavy, but the proportion killed in the peninsula has dwindled in recent years because the "buck law" has decidedly improved hunting conditions in the northern counties of the lower peninsula.

There are deer hunters in Escanaba today, who may not be as active in the woods as in their earlier years and who have been hunting in the same territory, north of Escanaba, for more than 50 years, who will testify that in recent open seasons they have seen as many or more deer than they did a half century ago. In spite of the fact that 50 years ago there were "camp hunters", and each licensee was permitted to kill five deer of any sex, most old timers do not believe that the annual kill in the peninsula, in those earlier years, approached the annual kill of bucks in recent seasons.

Credit for this development must be given to Michigan's enactment of the "buck law." And there is in Escanaba today the man who deserves major credit for the enactment of the greatest conservation measure in the history of the state. That individual is E. C. Voght, who started agitation for the enactment of that law many years before it was finally adopted. As president and active member of the successive Upper Peninsula Sportsmen's Associations and as a later member of the Michigan Conservation Commission, Ed Voght talked "buck law" in season and out, before sportsmen's associations and state legislative sessions, until he finally had the satisfaction of seeing his convictions converted into law.

If there are more deer in the peninsula today than 50 years ago, as many believe, the state "buck law" must be credited with that accomplishment.

Fire Prevention Vital

CHIEF ARVID JOHNSON of the Escanaba fire department calls attention to the importance of taking precautions against fire in connection with the forthcoming observance of Fire Prevention Week Oct. 8 to 14.

Despite the ceaseless efforts of fire prevention authorities, fire losses have doubled in nine years, reaching a total for the past year of more than $400,000,000.

If America's wartime fire waste is to be reduced it will be necessary for every interested person to cooperate in a campaign to spread information about fire dangers. Fire losses increase because most people are not sufficiently interested, and they are not interested because they have not been informed adequately as to the seriousness of losses and hazards.

Citizens who do appreciate, can perform a patriotic job by transmitting information to others and convincing them of the need for special efforts to reduce fire waste. Let's all include fire prevention with our daily work, not just for a week or a month but throughout the year, and let's start now.

National Newspaper Week

NATIONAL Newspaper Week will be observed in Escanaba and throughout the country Oct. 1 to 8, a week set aside to give recognition to what the American press has contributed to the nation's war effort.

For the newspapers have actively participated in this global conflict. More than 41,000 newspaper employees are serving in the armed forces, and already a considerable number of press correspondents and photographers have been listed among the casualties.

The newspapers have served well on other fronts. They have kept the people informed, assisting materially in the important job of bolstering the people's morale. They have kept the government vigilant and alert in the prosecution of the war through the function of criticism. They have kept the people themselves vigorous and alert and cooperative with the war effort.

Newspapers have donated millions of inches of editorial and display space, valued at millions of dollars, to scrap collection campaigns, war bond promotion drives and to the recruitment of servicemen and women.

Despite the fact that the nation is engaged in the greatest war in history, the American press has maintained its freedom. It has remained free because the people in this democracy have recognized the fact that it has fulfilled its responsibilities as an essential American institution. It has directed its efforts toward serving the best interests of this nation. A free, unhampered press is the grass roots of America where free enterprise still lives.

Not So Optimistic Now

WHEREAS Prime Minister Churchill some months ago optimistically predicted that the war in Europe would end in 1944, the British leader told the House of Commons this week that it was altogether probable that the conflict would extend for several months into next year.

The Allied strategists had counted much on the airborne invasion to crack the Siegfried line, but the Germans apparently were prepared for this master stroke. The fighting on the German homeland is increasing in ferocity. Heavier losses are being suffered by Allied air forces, and in other fields of action we are encountering stiffer German resistance.

The tone of Prime Minister Churchill's remarks to the House of Commons indicates that the Germans have a reserve of military power that is now being thrown into action. German propaganda also has been working overtime on the theme that the armies and the people must fight to the death for defeat can mean only the annihilation of their homeland.

Developments in the European theater offer more convincing proof that the war is not over for the men who are in there fighting, risking their lives and suffering untold privations. It is something to remember when the $40,000 United War Fund drive opens in Delta county next month.

RAILROADS IN AVIATION

The series of decisions being rendered by the Civil Aeronautics Board should make it abundantly clear that the Board has little idea of permitting the railroads to enter the aviation field.

Whether the railroads should be given this privilege is a broad question. It is held against them that they did not build the airlines. They awaited the development of aviation and then sought to enter the field only after it had been explored and promoted by other interests, whose initial capital and ingenuity had made commercial aviation feasible. However, they have built up various regions of the country and thus have at least some rights to the subsequent traffic, which that section produces, and also they have organizations equipped to solicit traffic, as well as facilities for handling it.

It would appear unfair to bar railroads from an air route solely because they are railroads. The allegations that this would create "monopolies" is true only to a limited extent. Those railroads which seek permission to use helicopters to carry freight in the territory directly over their own rail lines might properly be given it.

The CAB is probably right in curbing unprofitable competition over certain air routes and in opening new routes to those who have developed aviation. But at the same time the railroads might be given an opportunity to retain express and passenger traffic where business offers genuinely competing air lines a profit.

Politicians are doing a lot of blowing these days—enough in many cases to blow the election.

THUMBNAILED LESSON IN FRENCH

The French suffix -eur corresponds to the English -er, as in "walker, singer," and the -or, as in "actor, editor." Do not confuse -eur with the -ure of such words as pasture, feature, picture.

Properly pronounced, -eur rhymes approximately with "her, per," and never with "sure, pure." This explains why "pasture" for Pasteur, "pasturize" for pasteurize, "sabo-TOO-er" for saboteur, etc., are contrary to good usage. Note that -eur, in the preferred American pronunciations, is "er" in the following words:

Pasture:	pass-TER
pasturize:	PASS-ter-ize
hautéur:	hoe-TER
connoisseur:	kon-I-SER
saboteur:	sab-oh-TER
amateur:	am-uh-TER
chaffeur:	sho-FER

World War In The Air

BY MAJOR A. P. de SEVERSKY

With this dispatch I wind up a full year of work as a press columnist. At my own request, and despite the generous urging of the syndicate and individual editors, the column is being discontinued. I shall, of course, continue to write from time to time for the newspapers and periodicals, but I am dropping the burden of a regular column.

Seversky

It has been a great year for Allied arms, and the need of analyzing and commenting on the vital events as they unfolded was a real challenge to anyone with a deep interest in strategy. But the research and other work involved in writing such a highly specialized column is heavier than is perhaps apparent to the naked eye. In any case, I am undertaking important aviation activities which, for some time at least, will make a regular chore of this type impossible.

These dispatches have brought me a considerable number of letters from readers in all parts of the country and from some points beyond its borders. I take this informal opportunity to thank those who wrote me. I count on them to understand that it has been physically beyond my capacity to reply personally to all letters.

—MUSTN'T EXPECT MIRACLES—

By way of farewell, I should like to make a few points on the subject of air power which seem to me essential to an understanding of military events in the months and years ahead of us.

The first is this: That the public must not expect miracles from air power. It should be made aware that there are some things air power cannot do. I have never agreed with those whose zeal for the new military force has led them to promise more than our present air equipment can accomplish.

The result of exaggerated expectations is a sense of disappointment which reacts against the whole air-power idea. The episode of the bombardment of Cassino in Italy is a case in point. When the infantry failed to occupy the town after the terrific aerial assault, the public was led to expect that aviation, having pulverized the town as ordered, should also have swept away the debris to make a path for tanks and troops.

Another case in point is the excessive hopes pinned on airborne troops. After paratroopers have been landed, we must recall, they are merely ground soldiers. Whether men find themselves behind enemy lines by their own volition or because they have been cut off by the enemy, their tactical position after the surprise element has worn off is not much different.

Another fact worth emphasizing in preparation for coming events is that air power gives a minimum return for the men and equipment invested when used in cooperation with ground forces. It is most useful when it is released from its auxiliary role in support of surface strategy and moves independently to achieve command of the air over enemy territory. We obtain maximum returns for the investment, that is to say, when air power is used as a primary force to destroy the enemy's means of waging war. Important as joint air-ground operations may be, they utilize only a fraction of the air power potential.

—VICTORY THROUGH AIR POWER—

In this connection, I should like to emphasize that since air power is a strategic force it can, under appropriate conditions, win a war by its own direct action. Even this war could have been won by air power if equipment had been designed and geared for that purpose—but our national resources were irrevocably channeled from the start to implement a surface strategy. To insist, as some over-zealous writers did, that air power with its existing equipment could lick the Germans was hardly realistic. In the future, of course, air power will always make the decisions, until some entirely new principle of destruction of life and substance directly through space without any structural vehicle—by "death rays" or electronic means, let us say—is developed.

I would recommend also that intelligent observers of the course of the war watch how profoundly every extension of range in aviation affects the conduct of modern war. With the enlargement of the "reach" of air power, the need for intermediary bases is reduced. In-between bases are, after all, merely a substitute for range. When we wish to strike from the home base, let's call it A, against the crucial enemy target D, but lack the range to do so, we must first conquer the way-stations B and C and thus reach the ultimate objective by "hopping" from base to base.

That, in effect, is what we are now obliged to do in the Pacific. Every enhancement of range in our air power, however, will mean a corresponding reduction in the need to shed precious blood to conquer intermediary points.

—POSTWAR DEFENSE—

Above all, the American people have cause to watch the preparations for armaments in the postwar period. If we suffered humiliating defeats in the beginning of this war, it was because orthodox ruled the military roost which was preparing our nation for the coming conflict. We face a danger today that those who will receive the credit for winning this war will tend to rest on their laurels and perpetuate the obsolete methods and weapons of this war. Yet audacious thinking and ingenious planning will be more necessary than ever.

NOT MURDERERS — Michigan deer hunters are not murderers, says the state conservation department emphatically in a recent news release. It continues: "The conservation department cites the record in refuting the suggestion that many deaths of hunters climax previous arguments or happen because of drunkenness."

Dunathan

deer hunting season were the result of accidents. Fourteen of the 18 killed were the result of "errors in judgment," as the conservation department expresses it. The hunters "mistook their victims for game or because they shot blindly."

Yet it adds that "14 of the 17 victims, dead and wounded, who were mistaken for game were wearing red clothing."

BUT NEGLIGENT — The department gives particulars on some of the deaths and wounds, but passes most of the deaths off as simply "errors in judgment" and negligent homicide. The courts have seldom, if ever, had the opportunity to rule on such cases because there is seldom if ever a prosecution in such cases. Everybody feels sorry for the man who pulled the trigger — and it wouldn't bring the dead back to life again anyway.

So the hunter who lacks "judgment" is penalized only by his own remorse, and being denied the privilege of a hunting license again for five years. After five years he is supposed to have recovered his "judgment" and is then permitted to have a license to hunt deer again.

AN ACCIDENT — Mr. Webster defines the word accident as "An event that takes place without one's foresight or expectation; an undesigned, sudden, and unexpected event."

It would be correct to say, therefore, that the person killed or wounded while hunting is accidentally killed or wounded. But, at least from this same definition, it would be incorrect to say that the man who pulled the trigger did so "accidentally."

For who can raise a rifle, aim it well enough to have the bullet find its mark, and press the trigger without using foresight, expectation, design? That takes coordination, purpose.

The error of judgment is there as an element—but certainly it cannot be called an accident.

LOOKING AHEAD — It would have been better, perhaps, for the conservation department to have taken a different slant in presenting the story of the 1943 deer hunting season accident toll.

Instead of having the first line of the story read: "Michigan deer hunters are not murderers," it might have been more effectively (and truthfully) said that: "Michigan deer hunters are not careless."

For no one has charged that Michigan deer hunters are murderers. It has been "suggested," the department points out, but that is far from a formal charge. It is true the department has done and is doing much toward directing attention to the need for care and caution in handling firearms in the woods—but there should be some strong terms used in describing those who, by their carelessness, have caused the death of 14 of their fellowmen in 15 days.

The time is not far off when the careful deer hunter is going to demand laws to keep the negligently careless man out of the woods.

HOW IT HAPPENS — Looking over some of these "errors in judg-

10 Years Ago—1934

Slugged, bound, gagged and robbed Sunday night by two men he had hired in Escanaba that day to help with fall farm work, Arthur Nadeau, 50 of Flat Rock, received treatment at the hospital while officers were on the lookout for the two men, who had escaped with over $100 and Nadeau's automobile.

September temperatures here ranged from 70 to 32 and the weather bureau indicated a trace of snow on the last day. Precipitation for the month was near normal.

Arrangements have been made to set up a public address system so the public can hear the address of Norman Thomas who is to speak before the second general session of the teachers conference. Miss Maud Gleason, member of the state board of the Michigan Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, and past president of the organization, will be guest of honor at a meeting of the local club here today.

Revision downward of the budget for the various departments of the county government, with a consequent reduction in the total taxes, was indicated yesterday following a meeting of the county board.

Open house will be maintained throughout next week by the Escanaba Municipal Utilities it was announced by F. R. Harris, city manager. Competent guides will be provided.

Manistique—According to the estimate of Julius Barnhart, caretaker at Scholcraft county Indian lake camp site, more than 5,000 people camped there during the 1924 season.

25 Years Ago—1919

Night classes in English, household economics, French, mechanical commercial branches, drawing and pattern drafting, printing and citizenship will be opened at the high school Thursday night, it was announced yesterday.

One of the largest towns of pulpwood ever to leave here was taken out by the Tug Ames, bound for Green Bay. The tow was valued at $54,000 and the cost of towing to Green Bay amounted to $13,000.

"ment" committed each deer hunting season would be amusing if it were not so tragic.

There was the case of the deer hunter who through an "error in judgment" shot at and hit a CCC truck a few years ago as it moved along a main highway. The hunter caught a glimpse of the moving tan vehicle and thought it was a deer. Fortunately none of the CCC boys inside were killed.

Then there was the hunter who saw a movement of white through the brush, aimed well and let go with a bullet from his rifle—and shot another hunter through his hand covered with a white canvas glove.

Over in Chippewa county last year a farmer was sitting in an outhouse when a bullet zipped through the building, clipping his ear. It was hunting season.

THOSE RED CLOTHES — "Fourteen of 17 victims, dead and wounded, who were mistaken for game were wearing red clothing," reports the conservation department.

Time was when a red mackinaw or red woolen shirt seemed to be insurance against the careless hunter. No so any more.

Getting down to cases: The deer hunter in Michigan purchases a license permitting him to kill one buck deer with horns extending not less than three inches from the skull.

If he were not negligent, if he were not careless that is all he would shoot at. By no stretch of the imagination could another hunter have such horns. So long as negligence and carelessness with firearms is condoned or excused, just so long will it continue. Michigan deer hunters are not murderers, that's true. But there are few persons who will say many are not inexcusably careless.

—Clint Dunathan.

The Lyons Den

NEW YORK—The head of a large tobacco company once came to the White House and offered to contribute $500,000 to the Warm Springs Foundation if the President would write an endorsement of the brand of cigarettes manufactured by his company. "Do you really mean it?" asked the President. "$500,000? It's a deal. I'll write the endorsement and have it ready for you tomorrow." The endorsement was received the next day, but it never was used. For the President had written: "I've been smoking these cigarettes for 25 years—and I still have sinus trouble."

LAST WEEK "While the Sun Shines" opened at the Lyceum Theatre. George S. Kaufman, who directed the play, attended the premiere. During the first act two of the minor players skipped some lines—lines which were referred to in the second and third acts, and upon which laughs depended. Without those lines in the first act, the later references would be meaningless and the laughs would be lost. . . . At the intermission, Kaufman rushed backstage, where he and Melville Cooper, who is featured in the play, quickly rewrote a scene, interpolating some explanatory lines to preserve the plot and save the laughs.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

Lt. Col. Robert S. Allen now on active service with the Army)

Washington—When you study the official investigations of Wall Street firms, which caused public outrage, demanding the establishment of the Securities and Exchange Commission, you find that some of the most top-heavy investment sky-scraper were built up with the legal advice of the firm of Sullivan and Cromwell, of which John Foster Dulles is the most prominent partner.

However, it also happens that one of President Roosevelt's own cabinet members, James V. Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy, is linked up with at least one of the investment giants which deflated with such loss to the average American investor.

—RELUCTANT WITNESS—

In fact, even today Dulles is being hounded by disagreeable lawyers who demand his deposition in one of the most suspicious-looking cases in the history of American utility companies, where $500,000 were contributed to the campaigns of Bruce Campbell, Democratic candidate for governor of Illinois, Mayor Bernard Francis Dickmann of St. Louis, Senator Roscoe Patterson of Missouri, Ed Winter of Missouri, former acting governor of Puerto Rico, and to scores of judges, aldermen and state legislators all over the Midwest for the alleged purpose of influencing utility legislation.

For months Dulles dodged the process-server in this case. Finally a marshal waited all night in front of Dulles' house, just before he was about to drive to Washington to confer with Secretary Hull. As he stepped into the car, the process-server jumped out, served Dulles with the subpoena. Several photographers were present, caught the dramatic picture. But for some reason the photograph was never published.

First chapter in this case occurred when Harrison Williams, husband of America's best-dressed woman, organized the North American holding company controlling a score of Midwest utilities, with securities valued at $1,526,000,000 in 1929. John Dulles was not only counsel but, in the peak year of 1929, became a director and a member of the executive committee.

—FRANTIC RESIGNATION—

He remained there for nine years, until suddenly, on Nov. 4, 1938, he resigned. His resignation followed a phone call from the Securities and Exchange Commission that it intended to investigate the operations of North American's most important subsidiary, Union Electric of Missouri.

The federal government brought criminal charges against various Union Electric officials, asserting that campaign contributions were used to influence politicians in Missouri and Illinois, so that North American might sell highly profitable but unnecessary utility bond issues to a gullible public. Secretary of the Navy Forrestal's investment firm, Dillon, Read & Company, handled these bond issues.

Government prosecutors put John Dulles on the witness stand and grilled him at great length, but did not indict him. They did indict and convict Frank J. Boehm, executive vice president of Union Electric. Boehm has now turned around and sued John Dulles, Harrison Williams, Clarence Dillon and their companies, contending that he could not have spent the huge total of $5,000,000 as a slush fund for political purposes without the knowledge of these officials and that he was made the scapegoat to protect them. This is the suit in which Mr. Dulles is now such a reluctant witness.

—INFLATED COMPANY—

The Dulles firm also was counsel for another of Harrison Williams' top-heavy investment trusts, Central States. According to an official report by the Securities and Exchange Commission, Williams invested only $72,000 in Central States in 1912, and by clever manipulation with investors' funds, he inflated the company to more than $350,000,000 in 1929. When the bubble finally burst, the American public, according to the SEC, was left holding the bag to the tune of more than $300,000,000.

By the end of last year, the company, still dominated by Williams and counselled by Dulles, was worth only $11,148,655. The subsidiaries of Central States and their shrinkages were: Goldman Sachs, shrank $403,000,000 from 1929 to 1936; Shenandoah Corporation, shrank $124,000,000; Blue Ridge Corporation, shrank $97,000,000; American Cities Power and Light, shrank $72,000,000; plus several others.

Dulles is also counsel and a dominating influence in the American Banknote Company which, through his influence with Central States and the North American Company, has enjoyed a monopoly of all their stock and bond certificates. Other bank notes companies have offered to take this business at around half the price charged by American Banknote.

—DOMINATING INFLUENCE—

Dulles also was a dominating influence in the Babcock and Wilcox Boiler Company. Until recent years subsidiaries of the North American Company were required to buy their power plant boilers from Babcock and Wilcox, sometimes at prices considerably higher than those obtainable at competitive bidding.

Dulles' firm also was counsel for McKesson and Robbins during the famous fiasco when its head, Donald F. Coster, turned out to be Frank Musica, who shot himself when he was caught several millions short on phony warehouse receipts.

A research institution has proposed control of Jap and Nazi electricity. We want no more shocks from them.

Furblo Company At Hermansville Foresees Postwar Expansion

MAKES FANS OF VARIED DESIGN

Furnace Manufacture Is Also Scheduled For Development

The Furblo company at Hermansville, pioneers in air conditioning for homes, is now busily engaged in war production work but still finds time to manufacture an occasional furnace and is looking forward to rapid expansion after the war, its business executives have reported.

The company was established in 1927 for the manufacture of furnace blowers and this business, the making of fans for various uses, is still the principal item of production. For the first several years, the company sold its entire output of furnace blowers to furnace manufacturers, but four years ago the production of Furblo furnaces was launched at the Hermansville plant.

Increased Production

At present much of the production of the Furblo company is helping to speed victory in the war against Hitler and Hirohito. Some of the commodities still remain shrouded in secrecy because they provide a clue to war production. Many blowers produced at the Furblo factory are now sailing the seven seas and are used for a number of important purposes.

R. J. Marcoe, manager of company, reported that the Furblo factory is looking forward with much optimism for postwar expansion. The production of Furblo furnaces, ventilating fans, air conditioning units and blowers for a number of other purposes will be materially increased when facilities are once more available in unrestricted quantities. The disposition of all Furblo products now is made strictly upon a basis of WPB priorities.

One of the devices developed at the Furblo plant that promises a ready market in the postwar period is a ventilating system for livestock barns, thermostatically controlled, that eliminates barn odors and reduces barn humidity. Experiments in this field have proved very successful, it was reported, and the company plans considerable expansion later.

Started 7 Years Ago

G. Harold Earle, president of the Wisconsin Land and Lumber company at Hermansville, which established the Furblo company as a subsidiary, declared, "We started the Furblo company, first known as the Lakeside company, 17 years ago with the idea of establishing a business which would not be dependent upon timber, and woodworking business would naturally shrink on account of dwindling timber supply."

"We expected this to be an orderly transition and even as long ago as when we built our flooring warehouse and remodeled our repair and machine shop, we anticipated that these would eventually be a part of the Furblo manufacturing plant, which is still our plan."

Retailers Can Use Sealed Envelopes To Deposit Tokens

Persons with ration bank accounts may deposit blue tokens in sealed envelopes as well as in token containers, the office of price administration said today.

Beginning October 16, blue tokens may not be used for any purpose.

Through October 9, retailers may deposit them in ration banks or take them to their local war price and rationing boards to exchange them for ration certificates or ration coupons.

The use of envelopes was authorized as a convenience to the trade and because the supply of cardboard containers in which tokens were originally supplied to banks and stores is inadequate in some areas.

The envelopes which may be used are in two sizes. For 250 or fewer tokens, a small envelope is available at local boards. For quantities of 251 to 1,000 tokens, a larger bulk envelope should be used. That envelope may be supplied by the retailer. Not more than 1,000 tokens may be placed in the bulk envelope and not more than 250 may be placed in the small envelopes.

When envelopes are used, they must be sealed. The business name and address, a statement that the tokens are deposited or exchanged under the processed foods rationing program and the number of tokens must be written on the face of the envelope. The person who uses the envelope must also sign his name, the signature being his certification that the statements are true.

SHAPING BLOWER SHELL—A power break is used to shape metal for blowers, ventilators, furnaces, etc., at the Furblo factory. In this photo the operator, Leno Faccio, is shaping a blower shell.

A FURNACE TAKES SHAPE—A Furblo furnace takes shape in this picture as Clem DeCamp assembles a 24-inch model. The castings are not made at the Furblo factory but all of the other parts are locally made.

SHIPPING DEPARTMENT—Completed blowers, eight blade resistor fans and other products are stacked up in the shipping department. The aluminum devices that look like bird cages are casings for Furblo furnace blowers.

Outdoor Hiawathaland by Vic Powers

Partridge Day

Comparable to the opening of trout season in the spring is Sunday, October 1. It is the opening of the bird season and to nine out of ten hunters that means that they are going partridge hunting. True it is also the opening of the season on rabbits, woodcock, prairie chicken and sharpshins, but the raffish grouse is the Upper Peninsula hunter's prime small game target.

They will be in the woods with their guns, their precious shells and their dogs. The usual early season heavy cover will hide the birds, and the birds are all too scarce this year.

J. A. Vizona, dean of the Peninsula's conservation men, who is almost constantly in the woods, says that he has seen few birds in the last two months and those few widely scattered. If the hunters find them it will be "All luck," he says. From practically all other outdoorsmen comes the same story, "few birds," or "hunting will be spotty."

Such favored localities in the past as the Stonington peninsula are reported practically devoid of birds. However, the Nahma country is said to have some sharpshins and numbers of grouse have been seen regularly north and west of Rapid River. The Cedar River area should be good for some shooting although hunters may have to get down into the swamp to find the birds. Part of Easthwa township over in Menominee county has good numbers of grouse according to the "grapevine."

The game men of the Michigan Conservation Department believe that the grouse are at the bottom of their cycle. In that they have agreement of the experts in Wisconsin, so if it is any consolation to the hunter the scarcity of birds is general.

Michigan's game men seem to believe that hunting pressure is no more than a minor factor in the ups and downs in the supply of grouse. If they were alarmed, they would recommend that the season or limits be reduced, which the Conservation Commission could do. Perhaps they operate on the theory that so long as they are unable to let the hunters take a greater part of the big crops of game when we have them, there is not much object in curtailing the hunter's quest for game when it is scarce. Placing complete control of seasons and bag limits in the hands of the Conservation Commission would allow the flexibility necessary to adjust hunting pressures to game supplies. The present setup, which waits upon the pleasure of the legislature, sometimes delays changes until the conditions which call for them have passed.

Wanted: Storms

Things don't look too rosy for the duck hunter for the next couple of weeks. In fact there will be little stirring at all until the northern ducks begin winging south. Persistent duck hunters will still knock down some game, but not what they would like. Other than the purely local ducks, Howard Eldred, advances the belief that waterfowl trickling through this area may come from the Seney refuge. A few geese continue to be sighted along the bay and the blind hunters pick up some coots.

Ted Baldwin, who is teaching his son, Richard, the joys of wildfowling, has been considerably miffed at the disbelief he has encountered when telling of the young "un's" fast knocking off three coot with a single shot at Portage last week end. He has some consolation in finally learning that they are fine eating and that after years of scolding the "mudhens."

SEN. FERGUSON TO COME HERE

Will Join Kelly, Brown
And Others At GOP
Rally Tuesday

United States Senator Homer Ferguson of Detroit will come to Escanaba Tuesday to join Gov. Kelly and other Republican candidates for one of the major GOP rallies to be held in the Upper Peninsula before the November election.

Word that Senator Ferguson would come to Escanaba was received yesterday afternoon at Republican headquarters.

Scheduled to speak at the rally to be held in William Oliver Memorial auditorium are Gov. Harry F. Kelly, candidate for reelection; Vernon J. Brown, candidate for lieutenant governor; John D. Morrison, candidate for auditor general; and the Hon. Fred Bradley, congressman from the 11th district.

The public rally is scheduled for 8:45 o'clock. Preceding the rally there will be a campaign parade the length of Ludington street from the Sherman hotel to Junior high school. The Escanaba municipal band will play.

A feature of the rally will be the presentation of all Republican county candidates.

Prior to the rally program Gov. Kelly and the state candidates will be guests of honor at a 6:30 o'clock dinner at the Sherman hotel, to which members of Escanaba Rotary, Lions, Kiwanis Clubs, veterans' organizations and the Escanaba Trades & Labor Council are invited to attend. At that meeting Gov. Kelly will speak on "Postwar Planning for the State."

More Blue Ration Stamps Now Valid

Ration stamps becoming valid October 1, it was announced today by the office of Price administration, are blue stamps M, N, P, Q, R and red stamps H, J and K, both series 5.

The natural life of lions is 20 years, but it has been found that lions in captivity live longer.

An ambitious venture devised to insure bumper onion crops in the county is threatened.

This sounds complicated, but it's really quite simple. A considerable area of muck soil is being prepared for future onion crops. As wire worms attack first sowings of onions in fresh soil, carrots—which are not relished by the worms—are planted for a season or two to starve them out.

But Arenac county deer DO like carrots, hence the onion farmers have been driven to rigging carbide "exploders" in an effort to frighten them away.

Marie Greis and Francis Verbeten Wedding Tuesday

In a ceremony which took place Tuesday morning at St. Joseph's church, Miss Marie Greis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Greis, of 1300 North 16th street, became the bride of Petty Officer First Class Francis T. Verbeten, of the U. S. Coast Guard, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Verbeten, of 144 James street, Kimberly, Wis.

Pink and white gladioli decorated the altar and the sanctuary for the ceremony which was solemnized by Rev. R. Alphonsus, O. F. M., celebrant of the nine o'clock nuptial high mass.

Gonnard's "Ave Marie" was sung by Miss Patricia Ammel at the offertory and Mrs. John Cass sang "On This Day." The traditional bridal marches were played by Miss Eva Cossette, organist.

Attendants were Mrs. Howard Van Ryzin, sister of the bridegroom, who was matron of honor, Miss Margie Greis, the bride's sister, who was bridesmaid, little Barbara Ottensman, cousin of the bride, who was train bearer, and Howard Van Ryzin and Donald Sarnowski, M. M. 2/c, who served as best man and groomsmen.

The bride wore a gown of white marquisette with insets of white lace and a full length veil, gathered to a coronet of seed pearls, and she carried American Beauty roses and baby ferns. The matron of honor wore orchid marquisette and the bridesmaid, yellow marquisette, and both carried orchid and yellow asters. The train-bearer wore a frock of white dotted silk over pink satin.

Mrs. Greis, mother of the bride, wore navy blue with black accessories and Mrs. Verbeten wore a brown suit with matching accessories. Both mothers had corsages of American Beauty roses.

Dinner and Reception
A wedding dinner was served at the home of the bride's parents to fifty guests and a reception for one hundred guests followed the dinner. Pink and white gladioli and blue bachelor buttons were used in the decorations, with the central note, the tiered wedding cake.

The bride, a graduate of St. Joseph's high school, is employed in the office of the S. M. Johnson Coal and Ice company. She will remain in Escanaba temporarily and her husband is returning to California where he is stationed.

Guests at the wedding included Mr. and Mrs. Peter Verbeten, daughters, Gretchen and Jolene, and son, Dick, of Kimberly, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Van Ryzin of Appleton, Wis., and Mrs. John Wilep of Milwaukee.

Eskymos At Norway; Manistique Meets Braves At Gladstone

LIVELY FIGHT IS SHAPING UP

Vikings Expected To Try Aerial Assaults On Ruwichtmen

The Escanaba high school football team will travel to Norway this morning to battle Coach Allen Ronberg's Vikings this afternoon in a game that renews one of the most interesting rivalries of the peninsula.

Both teams were defeated in their last week games, the Eskymos by Iron Mountain, 7 to 6, and the Vikings by Iron River, 10-6, but this in no way dulls the impending battle of the two aggregations today.

From a standpoint of experience, the Vikings hold an advantage over the Eskymos, as they are presenting a team composed mainly of newcomers, but the season's records of the two teams indicate that Coach Ruwicht's lads are at least equal in potential strength with the Norway squad.

The Eskymos have performed nobly defensively against running plays this season, neither the So nor the Mountaineers making any consistent gains against the Escanaba line. Coach Ruwicht is depending upon the Eskymos defense to stop the Vikings today.

That Coach Ronberg will depend considerably upon passing to overthrow the Eskymos is a foregone conclusion. Iron Mountain used this weapon to snatch victory last Saturday and the Vikings themselves have always been more successful with passes against Escanaba teams than they have with ground attacks.

Coach Ruwicht is expected to start the same lineup that took the field last Saturday against Iron Mountain. This lineup follows: Hirm, le; Weir, 11; Boyle, 12; Scott, c; Corbett, 11; Finn, 11; Dufour, re; Wickholm, qb; Bill Peterson, 11b; Jack Schills, fb; and Scheibner, rbb.

SPARTANS BACK IN GRID WARS

East Lansing, Sept. 29 (AP)—Civilian freshmen will dominate the lineups tomorrow when Scranston university (Scranston, Pa.) helps Michigan State college resume intercollegiate football. Scranston is starting all freshmen while Coach Charley Bachman planned to have eight yearlings, a sophomore and two juniors on the field for the kickoff.

The squads worked out today, Scranston arriving in time to make use of Macklin field.

The Pennsylvania team has had the benefit of two earlier games, having defeated Franklin and Marshall college and lost to Villanova, but it is the opening game of a seven-game schedule for state.

State still is uncertain whether it can play Fred Aronson, right halfback, and Mike Prashaw, right tackle, due to injuries, although they are booked to start. Bill Maskill is Aronson's substitute while Ellis Phillips or Dan Goldsmith will start if Prashaw is on the bench.

The game will see Coach Bachman unveil a new style of offense. He abandoned his traditional Notre Dame style of play for a simplified plan of attack that he believes is better adapted to his inexperienced cast.

The kickoff will be at 2 p. m.

Pennant Race Tied Up Again As Tigers Split, Browns Win Two

TROUT KNOCKED OUT IN NIGHTCAP WITH WASHINGTON

BY FRANK KENESSON
Detroit, Sept. 29 (AP)—The last place Washington Senators, splitting a doubleheader today with the Detroit Tigers before 17,606 fans, knocked out Paul (Dizzy) Trout in four innings of their 9 to 2 nightcap victory after the Tigers had taken the opener, 5 to 2.

The even break knocked Detroit into a tie for the American league lead with the St. Louis Browns, who whipped New York twice at St. Louis. The pennant thus will be decided on the last day of the season Sunday.

Washington, beaten by Ruffus Gentry in the opener for its 16th loss to the Tigers in 19 games this year, belted Trout for six runs and six hits in sending him to his 13th defeat against 27 wins. Left-hander Milt Haefner, nicked for 12 hits, coasted to his 12th victory after being staked to a 6-0 lead.

The Senators, taking their second decision in nine appearances at Briggs stadium, batted on a dozen hits off four Tiger pitchers. Stan Spence, with his 12th homer good for three runs in the third, drove in four tallies in the nightcap.

Gorsica Relieves Gentry
Detroit, battling to hold its bare edge over the Browns, made seven hits off Johnny Niggeling count for five runs in the first game, kayoning Niggeling in the eighth inning in handing him his eighth loss.

Ruffus Gentry, giving 10 hits in 7 2-3 innings, gave way to Johnny Gorsica in the eighth but received credit for his 12th victory.

Rudy York's triple drove home a Tiger score in the first inning and Gentry held the edge until he wild-pitched the tying run across in the sixth. Detroit sewed it up with three runs in the seventh on four hits.

Spence, with two singles in the first game and a homer and two more singles in the second, was the batting star of the day. George Case had a pair of doubles in the opener and two singles in the nightcap while Rudy York led the Tigers with two triples, a double and a single in nine trips in the two games.

Gentry, in trouble most of the way, stayed through till Spence and Joe Kuhel singled and Jake Powell doubled after two were out in the eighth. Gorsica relieved and threw out Rick Ferrell to end the uprising.

Dick Wakefield doubled to start the Tigers' seventh inning rally after one was out. He took third on a passed ball and scored on Jim Outlaw's single to left. Outlaw stole second as Paul Richards fanned but after Joe Hoover was passed purposely Gentry singled to center, scoring Outlaw.

Roger Cramer's single sent Hoover across with the third run. Pinky Higgins walked in the eighth, took second on a passed ball, third on York's infield out and scored on Outlaw's single. Rookie Vernon Curtis relieved Niggeling to retire Richards and Hoover.

Trout retired the first three Washington batters in the second game but after that the Senators had at least two hits and one run in each of the next five innings.

Newhouse Today
Spence's single, an infield out and Mike Guerra's single recorded one run off Dizzy in the second. Two were out in the third when Spence slammed his important homer into the upper right field seats, scoring behind Haefner, who had singled, and George Myatt, who had walked.

Haefner walked to lead off the fourth and scored when George Case singled to right and Outlaw pegged wildly to the plate. Case,

PASSING DUEL AT ANN ARBOR

Indiana And Michigan To Open Big Ten Grid Schedule

Ann Arbor, Mich., Sept. 29 (AP)—One of the season's most spectacular passing duels may be the treat in store for approximately 15,000 fans expected to sit in on Michigan's Big Ten football inaugural against Indiana here Saturday (2 p. m. EDT).

The Hoosiers, bolstered by the return on a special order Navy discharge of Bobby (Hunchy) Hoernschmeyer, one of the nation's leading pitching aces last season, is equipped with at least two other first rate passers in halfbacks Ben Raimondi and Bob Miller and doubtless will put considerable emphasis on its air game against the Wolverines.

Hoosiers Heavier
Michigan, scoring three of its four touchdowns on Bill Culligan to Dick Rifenburg passes in two previous victories, also is expected to bank heavily on Culligan's throwing tomorrow along with a fast developing running game that piled up heavy yardage last week in the Wolverines' 14 to 0 decision over Marquette.

Indiana, tophavy winner over Fort Knox in its opener, though beaten last Saturday by Illinois, will send eight lettermen against Michigan, which has an equal number of vets.

The Hoosiers will rate a big edge in the line, however, on both experience and weight. Standouts in the Indiana forward wall are Center John Tavenner, who played with the College All-Stars who whipped the Chicago Bears at Chicago in August, and Negro guard J. C. Coffee, who also plays tackle.

Three top-notch freshman backs, Abe Adams, George Sundheim and Harry Jagade, are expected to bear the brunt of the Hoosier running attack.

The game will be the 12th in a Michigan-Indiana rivalry that started back in 1900. Michigan, with nine wins against two defeats, whipped the Hoosiers 23 to 6 here last season.

who had gone all the way to third on the play, came in on Myatt's hit to right.

Haefner's singles to left with the bases loaded accounted for Washington's two runs in the fifth off Jake Moety.

Myatt and Gil Torres singled to lead off the Washington sixth, bringing in Walter (Boom-Boom) Beck to pitch for Detroit. Spence drove a deep fly to Cramer, Myatt scoring after the catch. Beck was removed for a pinch-hitter in the seventh and Zeb Eaton finished.

Higgins' single, York's double and Bob Swift's fly accounted for Detroit's first run in the fourth. Don Ross' pinch double and singles by Cramer and Mayo chased the second run across in the seventh.

Alex Carrasquel was slated to oppose Hal Newhouse in the third game of the series tomorrow.

YANKS ELIMINATED WITH TWIN LOSS AT ST. LOUIS

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY
St. Louis, Sept. 29 (AP)—The determined St. Louis Browns swept into a tie with the Detroit Tigers for the American league pennant today by twice conquering the New York Yankees while the Tigers split a double header with tail-end Washington.

The victories eliminated the Yankees from any mathematical pennant chance and assured the Browns of second place.

St. Louis thumped Ernie Bonham 4 to 1 in the first game and beat Hank Borowy 1 to 0 on two hits in the final. The Brownies squeezed in their only run in the first when Don Guttridge doubled, went to third on a wild pitch that hit the dirt in front of the plate and scored on Mike Kreevich's grounder to first.

Nelson Potter, pitching the Browns' second game, chalked up his 19th victory of the season against seven defeats.

Sensational one hand running catches by Kreevich and Guttridge saved the second game for the Brownies. In the eighth with two on and two out, Kreevich raced backwards to the center wall to pull down Johnny Lindell's long fly. In the ninth Guttridge leaped high to spear pinchhitter Paul Waner's liner over his shoulder with one hand.

Homer for McQuinn
Gangling, 26-year-old Jack Kramer registered his fourth straight victory in the first game.

Four hits in the third inning netted the Browns two runs and a lead of one run over the Yanks, with Kramer starting the blasting.

He doubled over Lindell's head, moved to third as Guttridge beat out a bunt. Kreevich singled to left. Kreevich, Kramer, Guttridge stopping at second, Chet Laabs singled to center, Guttridge scoring.

The Brownies tucked the game away in the eighth when George McQuinn propelled his eleventh homer of the season, scoring Vern Stephens who had singled. McQuinn's blow sailed over the right field pavilion.

The Yanks scored their run in the first inning when George Stinewiss opened with a single, and Art Metheny sacrificed. Stinewiss moved to third as Guttridge tossed out Herschel Martin. Lindell singled to center, scoring Stinewiss.

The victory was Kramer's 17th against 13 defeats.

LONG RIVALRY FLARES AGAIN

Keilmens Better Balanced But Emeralds Have Experience

Gladstone, Mich.—A chalk session last evening wound up preparations of the Gladstone high school Braves for their annual football battle with Manistique high this afternoon at Marble Athletic field.

The kickoff is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Practice sessions this week were designed to iron out some of the weaknesses revealed in the opener against Munising last Saturday. Coach Eldon Keil also worked to smooth out the offense of his charges, and he is hopeful the team will have more noise and confidence and his backs more drive.

Both Gladstone and Manistique have defeated Munising by large scores this season but the Braves appear the better balanced squad for much of the Schoolcrafters offense is laid around Curley, speedy halfback. Even against Munising, admittedly weak this year, Manistique failed to do much when Curley was out of the game. Against Negaunee they failed to show any great scoring punch after Curley left the game on the second play.

Coach Reque's squad has one big advantage and that is experience, for the team boasts a large number of lettermen and will be playing its third game while Gladstone green crew will be making its second start.

Coach Keil plans to use the same starting lineup as a week ago. Schense and Kinziger will be at end, Gillis and Timer at tackle, Johnson and Bergeon at guard, Jugo at center, Capt. Sigant at quarterback, Lundmark and Haglund at halfback and Kallman at fullback.

Puckelwitz, Baldwin and Schram of Escanaba will handle the game.

Service Club League Will Have 6 Teams

Edward V. Rudness was elected president of the Service club bowling league at the annual meeting of league representatives this week. Bruce Brackett was named vice president and Clarence Zerbel was re-elected secretary.

League bowling is expected to begin Wednesday, Oct. 11, and the same hours as last year, 7 to 9 p. m., will be observed. Making up the slate will be three teams from the Kiwanis club and one each from the Rotary and Lions clubs.

The sixth team may be a service club unit from Bark River. Officials have extended an invitation to the bowlers of the Bark River Lions club to participate.

THE SPORTS PARADE
By Ken Gunderman

Today the Eskymos are going to break the jinx that has dogged them at Norway. Escanaba football teams have had the least success on the Norway gridiron that they have had on any other football field in the peninsula. In fact only once in the current string of Norway-Escanaba games has the Eskymos defeated the Vikings at Norway. They have mauled the Norway teams at Escanaba quite regularly but have had their ears pinned back on the Norway field far too often to be a coincidence. The Vikings are tough when they play at home. Make no mistake about that. This time it's going to be a different story.

Two games don't change an experienced team to a team of veterans but they certainly help to file off the rough edges. The Eskymos lost at Iron Mountain principally because of inexperience. Actually they outplayed the Mountaineers most of the afternoon. That 7-6 setback was a heartbreaker. From the spirit of determination displayed by the Eskymos in practice sessions this week, there is definite indications that they will lift themselves up by the bootstraps to smack down the Vikings. And as long as my chin is stuck out this far, here goes for the prediction on the score: Escanaba 20, Norway 6. (Note the two extra points after touchdowns.)

Over at Gladstone, another grid rivalry of long standing will be renewed today in the annual Gladstone-Manistique game. The score of last week's predictions: seven right, four wrong. Score for the season: 14 right, eight wrong for 63.6 percentage—and I'm not bragging.

One-Armed Player Is Signed By St. Louis

Memphis, Sept. 29 (AP)—The major leagues opened the gate to a one-armed player today, with season's diamond play predicting there would be no regrets.

Pete Gray, sensational one-armed outfielder of the Memphis Chicks, was sold to the St. Louis Browns for what was announced as "an undisclosed sum of cash and an unidentified player."

He is scheduled to join the American league club at the start of next season.

Thus after three years in professional ball, the lean, 27-year-old Pennsylvanian gets a chance to prove his contention: "I can play with those fellows up there."

Gray, who lost his right arm as a six-year-old, was voted the "most valuable" player in the Southern Association this year after leading Memphis to first-half championship in split-season play.

He batted .333, smashing out five home runs, and stole 68 bases to tie a modern league record set by Hazen (Kiki) Cuyler 20 years ago.

DEALS CENTER ON SPECIALTIES

BY VICTOR EUBANK
New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—The stock market centered its buying attention mainly on specialties today and, while many leaders lacked motive power, a last-minute upward flurry and a number of pivots improved mildly at the close.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up 2 1/2 of a point at 54.5. Of 820 issues appearing, 5 less than yesterday, 403 were up, 215 down, and 102 unchanged. Transfers totaled 746,550 shares compared with 636,710 the day before.

Top buyers were touched by Douglas Aircraft, Texas Pacific Land Trust, Bucyrus-Erie, General Steel Castings preferred, Excelsior and Joy Mfg. The last named, together with Sullivan Machinery in the curb, were helped by talk of consolidation of the two companies.

Advancers included Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Southern Pacific, Delaware & Hudson, Atlantic Coast Line, Cuban-American Sugar (on a boosted dividend), Martin-Parr, U. S. Steel, General Motors, J. C. Penney, Sperry, Lockheed and Sears. Decliners were better selected for Western Union, Du Pont, International Nickel, Kennecott, Owens-Illinois and Philip Morris.

Cotton bonds were better selected. At Chicago wheat was up 7-8 to 1 3/8 cents a bushel. Cotton was 15 to 45 cents a bale lower.

GRID FORECASTS ARE ANNOUNCED

BY HAROLD CLAASSEN
New York, Sept. 29 (AP)—Making the season's second appearance as a football forecaster with the full knowledge that last week's record of only three losses in 34 selections won't be approached.

The selections (probable attendances in brackets):
Notre Dame over Pittsburgh (60,000): The Irish have dropped some and Pittsburgh has come a Tennessee over Kentucky (18,000): Notre Dame should have enough left.

Duke over Pennsylvania (50,000): Penn has two huge tackles but an all-freshman backfield. It's likely to be close.

Navy over North Carolina Pre-Flight (14,000): The country's pre-season choice as the No. 1 college football team makes its debut.

Army over North Carolina (8,000): Despite North Carolina's setback by Wake Forest last week, the Cadets will learn here if they have a line to go with their publicized backs.

California over UCLA (50,000): The home field advantage should give the Golden Bears the needed lift in a game that could go either way.

Tennessee over Kentucky (18,000): Neither team played last year and Kentucky will wish it still was idle.

Michigan over Indiana (20,000): The Culligan-Rifenburg passing combine to defeat but not overshadow the Hoosiers' Bob Hoernschmeyer.

Great Lakes over Illinois (25,000): Injuries and losses by Navy regulations to hurt the Illini.

Southern California over College of Pacific (40,000): Not even Mr. Stagg's presence can help here.

Alabama over Louisiana State (30,000): Frank Thomas never has lost an opening game since taking over the Crimson Tide.

Northwestern over Wisconsin: Freshman Jug Girard isn't enough for the Badgers.

Minnesota over Nebraska: The Gophers stood up well last week against the more numerous Iowa Seaahawks.

Ohio State over Missouri (25,000): The Buckeyes are labeled the best all-civilian team in the Middle West, if not in the entire country.

Purdue over Marquette: Cecil Isbell rings up his first triumph as coach of the Boilermakers.

Dartmouth over Holy Cross: Holy Cross lacked zest in a recent scrimmage against Yale.

Yale over Coast Guard (12,000): Could go the other way easy enough. Yale hasn't lost to a Connecticut team in 76 years.

The Roving Reporter

site hero, but not an individual. One group leader told me: "If everything went according to schedule we'd never shoot down a German plane. We'd cover our bombers and keep ourselves covered and everybody would come home safe."

The fighter pilots seem a little different from the bomber men. Usually they are younger. Many of them were still in school when they joined up. Ordinarily they might be inclined to be more harum-scarum, but their work is so deadly, and the sobering dark cloud of personal tragedy is over them so constantly, that it seems to have humbled them. In fact I think it makes them nicer people than if they were cocky.

They have to get up early. Often I've gone to the room of my special friends at 9:30 in the evening and found them all asleep. They try to get up early, but they can't do much drinking. One night recently when one of the most popular fighter pilots was killed in the home field, in an accident, some of them assuaged their grief with gin.

"Somehow you feel it more when it happens right here than when a fellow just doesn't come back," they said.

When they first came over here, you'd frequently hear pilots say they didn't hate the Germans, but you don't hear that any more. They have lost too many friends, too many roommates.

Now it is killing that animates them.

The highest spirits I've seen in that room were displayed one evening after they came back from a strafing mission. That's what they like to do best, but they get little of it. It's a great holiday from escorting bombers, which they hate. Going out free-lancing to shoot up whatever they see, and going in enough force to be pretty sure they'll be superior to the enemy—that's Utopia.

That's what they had done that day. And they really had a field day. They ran onto a German truck convoy and blew it to pieces. They'd laugh and get excited as they told about it. The trucks were all full of men, and "they'd fly out like firecrackers." Motorcyclists would get hit and dive 40 feet before they stopped skidding.

Two Messerschmitt 109s made the mistake of coming after our planes. They never had a chance. After firing a couple of wild bursts they went down smoking, and one of them seemed to blow up.

The boys were full of laughter when they told about it as they sat there on their cots in the dimly lighted room. I couldn't help having a funny feeling about them. They were all so young, so genuine, so enthusiastic. And they were so casual about everything, not casual in a hard, knowing way, but they talked about their flights and killing and being killed exactly as they would discuss girls or their school lessons.

Maybe they won't talk at all when they finally get home. If they don't it will not be because they know this is a world apart and nobody else could ever understand.

Paper Patriotism

War plants have aided waste paper salvage drives by placing red, white and blue barrels in handy spots, to remind workers that waste paper is needed, and to urge greater care in segregating paper from garbage and other refuse.

Salvaged Fats Needed
Used fats are needed not only for munitions and medicines, but also in the manufacture and operation of practically everything else the armed forces use, and that civilians as well must have. The American Fat Salvage Committee is urging housewives to realize fat salvage is still urgently necessary, regardless of victory in Europe.

PVT. BUD COOK WAR CASUALTY

Munising Soldier Killed In France Sept. 7, Says Message

Munising—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cook in a telegram received Wednesday night from the war department were informed that their son, Pvt. Charles "Bud" Cook, was killed in France on Sept. 7. Just as to where or how Pvt. Cook met his death was not stated in the telegram but the family will receive an official letter from the war department at a later date as to the cause and whereabouts of their son's death.

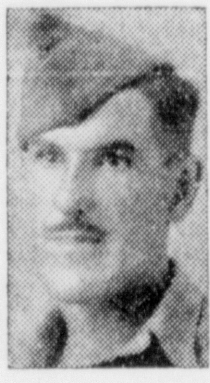

Pvt. Cook, better known as "Bud," was born Dec. 14, 1913, and lived here all his life except for a few years spent in Canada when he was a small boy. He attended Mather high school and was prominent in athletics, starring in track and football. In later years he became well known throughout the Upper Peninsula through his versatility in playing softball as he could play any position on the field with equal skill. Prior to his induction he was employed by the Cleveland-Cliffs Iron company in Munising and spent some time in Detroit doing defense work.

"Bud" was inducted into the army on Nov. 30, 1942, and received his basic training at Fort Lewis, Wash. After his basic training he was sent to Camp Pickett, W. Va., to begin training with the U. S. Army Engineers. From Camp Pickett he was sent to Norfolk, Va., and to a camp in Florida to receive additional training in amphibian landings and bridge building. From Florida Pvt. Cook was sent back to Camp Pickett for his final training and was then sent to a point of embarkation in New York in June, 1943, with Company C of the 40th Army Engineers.

When the Allies invaded North Africa, Pvt. Cook was one of the first men to land on the shores and took part in the campaign which ended with the German defeat at Tunisia. He also took part in Sicily and Italy invasions and it was in Italy that "Bud" received his first wounds in the arm and leg. After spending some time in a North Africa rest camp he returned to Italy for the final push on Rome. With a picked group of veterans from the engineering corps Pvt. Cook was sent to France and was in the invasion of Toulon.

By a quirk of fate the last letter that his parents received from him was on Sept. 7, the day that he was listed as killed by the war department. This made four major invasions that "Bud" participated in and never once in his letters home did he complain of any hardships.

Pvt. Cook is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Cook, who now reside on First street; four brothers, Lloyd, James, Jack and Robert, Munising; three sisters, Mrs. Fred Esis, Munising, and Mrs. Jay Hill and Mrs. Gus Reinke of Lansing.

A Letter to all Delta County Citizens

Dear Friends:

Have we forgotten anyone?

Have we all made sure that every Delta County WAVE, WAC, Soldier, Sailor or Marine in the Armed Services has obtained an absent voter's ballot for the November 7th election?

Whether they are in a training camp in this country, on a boat in the U. S. Fleet, or in England, Italy, France, India, Australia or Alaska, let's all help give our men and women an opportunity to vote November 7th.

To avoid the risk of mail delays and changes in address it is important that their requests for absent voters' ballots be made now.

Let's all do our part to make sure that every Delta County man and woman in the armed services has an opportunity to vote this fall.

Yours truly,

Delta County Board of Supervisors

This is another of a series of messages sponsored by the Delta County Board of Supervisors in the interests of Delta County Men and Women in the Armed Services.

Private Business Must Lead In Postwar Plans

A story of efforts in post war planning unfolding two separate approaches to the problem was told Friday evening at a meeting of the Citizens Forum in the city hall. Mark B. Owen, director of the committee on post war construction for the American Society of Engineers, discussed the future national construction picture. Ernest L. Pearce, Marquette, upper peninsula district chairman for the Committee on Economic Development, explained the purpose of the C. E. D. and placed the results of its findings at the disposal of communities undertaking a local post war planning survey.

Private construction must provide its fair share of employment in the post war adjustment period, or we will have a duplication of public works programs of the '30's. The value of a normal private construction program cannot be over emphasized, for without this activity there is little necessity for new public works construction, Mr. Owen emphasized.

The engineers society, Mr. Owen declared, has adopted a postwar construction policy combining a program of both private and public projects of unquestioned usefulness. The time to stimulate these activities is now in order to insure sufficient volume of construction immediately after the release of manpower from the armed services and from war production activities.

Michigan Makes Plans

The society, Mr. Owen continued, has declared that $15 billion worth of construction projects should be ready for bids by July 1, 1945, of which $10 billion, or two thirds, should be privately financed enterprises. Economic data of the past 15 years shows that new construction provided an average of 15 per cent of our national income. On the basis of the current national income, therefore, the $15 billion goal of the society is considered conservative. Michigan, continued the speaker, is one of the few states which has a start for a well rounded and distributed public works program. Records of the society as of Sept. 1 show, he remarked, there are $231.2 million worth of plans in the design stage, comprising projects in waterworks, sewerage, bridges, streets and roads and buildings. This figure represents an increase of 246 per cent over projects under consideration in May.

The only sound road to sustained increased employment after the war is the enlargement of production and sale of goods and services 35 to 40 per cent higher than in 1940, Mr. Pearce said. The individual businessman must make plans for business on a greatly expanded basis as compared to any known peacetime year.

Explains C. E. D. Functions
The function of the C. E. D. is to assist them in making these plans, and to avoid if possible the period of re-adjustment immediately after the war when government expenditures will drop from $90 billion to $25 billion a year.

As in the case of private construction interests, private business must do its share and must be prepared to take on employees to fill the markets with durable and non-durable goods, many of which have not been produced since 1942.

"With less goods and services to spend their greater savings on the U. S. people in three years have saved $75 billion, as much as they would have saved in 10 years at the 1940 rate. These people will demand the things they have done without, and for the first time in history the demand for consumer goods will exceed $100 billion a year."

Mr. Pearce outlined the activities of two divisions of the C. E. D., the field development division and the research division. The field division's basic job is to encourage bold and realistic planning by individual businessmen for more production and more jobs in their own companies. The research division, composed of some of the nation's outstanding businessmen, advised by a board of economists and social scientists, has set forth a series of problems to be studied.

Mr. Pearce continued with a visual demonstration showing the results of surveys conducted in Williamsport, Penna., and in Marquette. He emphasized that post war problems are not the same in each community, and that the facilities of the C. E. D. and its findings are at the disposal of any civic group for use in their city.

Financing Is Problem

Adding briefly to the discussion were George R. Thompson, Detroit city engineer and Glen C. Richards, commissioner of public works, Detroit.

During the question period following the speakers the problem of financing local public works was touched upon. Mr. Owen remarked that the time must come when the whole tax structure will be overhauled. The federal government, he said, collects by far the largest amount of the taxes, and provision some day must be made for greater relief of the municipalities. Mr. Pearce felt that if necessary the cost of post war public works should be spread out over a period of time.

In response to a suggestion from the floor that state reforestation should be included in post-war plans, Mr. Pearce replied that some consideration is being given that problem. However, he admitted the C. E. D. is engaged in a more complete study of projects in the utilization of wood products.

In 1922, there were only 22 miles of railway in Alaska.
